

01 October 2016

Dear Recruitment Team

Thank you for your consideration, this role is a fantastic opportunity to realise one of my core aspirations. I envision the front-end developer role at your company in particular as a chance to refine and fully realise my potential as a developer. I would also want for you to discover in me an invaluable member of your organisation.

In front-end development I have discovered a real love of problem solving, in particular using structure and logic to achieve visual sense, strong design and a good user experience. This blend of logic and design continues to captivate me and challenge me to push my developer skill set further. In a fast moving, ever changing industry i think it is essential to keep growing. However for me this on personal and professional growth is now beyond just necessity and has become a real passion.

During my time at Ark-H Handling I built a website utilising bootstrap for responsive layout. I extended bootstrap's responsive styles with my own CSS media queries. I recognised the importance of applying art direction for each potential form factor as a way of attending to and maximising the content design and layout.

In a personal project to make chess notation more accessible and readable, I made use of JavaScript's object model, to sort chess notation, from a text format into defined objects. By turning each move into an object, I was then able style and theme entire chess games by simply pasting in chess notation into a text input. I used JQuery extensively in this project to traverse and create HTML elements in the DOM.

While I've been able to effectively implement HTML, CSS and JavaScript in my role at Ark-H Handling; the role of Front-End developer at your organization offers what I consider a great opportunity to work with seasoned developers. As well as the chance to integrate the best, industry standard development patterns, into my own workflow. In particular using frameworks and working in the paradigm of single page application development. I'd relish the chance to be part of a design and development culture that produces first rate web solutions and experiences.

Having worked with these core web technologies HTML, CSS and JavaScript extensively on multiple projects. I now mean to build on my accomplishment and I see the role I am applying for with you as that next step. The next step to be more and to do more as a front end web developer. I hope you find in my application, a diligent, focused and determined individual, with a real passion for web development and design. Thank you for taking for time to consider my application, certainly more than anything, I really just appreciate the opportunity, so thank you again.

Sincerely,

Ivan Mamenemuno

Phone: 1234567890 | Email: afakemail@atfakeworld.com

Website: myactualwebsite.com | GitHub: <https://github.com/thisisnotmygithub>